Welcome to the Course!

Hello lovely!

I am so happy that you have decided to join Launch into Freshman Year! I have worked so hard to get this course perfect for you, and I can't wait until you start reading through it! If you have any questions, feel free to email me at aslifegrows@gmail.com!

I will see you in the course soon!

P.s. I feel like this welcome email is a little boring so I have included a bonus of a few things you can do to start preparing for your freshman year today!

Start Preparing for Freshman Year Today

In order to start preparing for your freshman year, you are going to have to get a few things straight. Here are the top six things you could start doing right now to get prepared for your first year at college!

1. Take the ACT

The first thing you are going to need to do as you start preparing for your freshman year is to study for and take the ACT. This is a very important test that will not only get you accepted into colleges but will also make you eligible for scholarships depending on how you score.

2. Take campus tours of your college options

Another important thing that you are going to need to do is to create a list of college options, weigh the pros and cons, and start visiting each campus. Getting on campus and talking to current students will really help you narrow down your college options.

3. Choose which college you will attend

Once spring starts getting close, you are going to need to officially decide which college you will be attending. You will then need to inform them of your attendance and inform other colleges that you are declining. This is usually done through a letter sent by the colleges.

4. Apply for scholarships

Now that you know where you will be attending, it is time to start applying for scholarships! Although the scholarship process can sometimes be frustrating, it is definitely worth the time. Getting scholarships will allow you to stress less over tuition prices and will allow you to focus on your studies.

5. Talk to upperclassmen at your future college

One of the easiest ways for you to find out what your specific college is going to be like is by talking to students who already attend there. These students will be able to give you tips on how to navigate around campus and can even tell you which teachers you should take and which teachers you should avoid.

6. Decide on a college major

One thing that I think is really important to do before you start college is choosing a college major. No, you don't have to choose a major before starting college; however, if you don't, you may end up taking classes that you don't actually need and possibly having to add on an extra semester to fill your degree plan requirements.

I hope you enjoyed this list of things you can start doing right now to prepare for your freshman year! Don't worry, Launch into Freshman Year will go much more in-depth on each of these topics! I can't wait until August 1st!

Bye lovely!
