
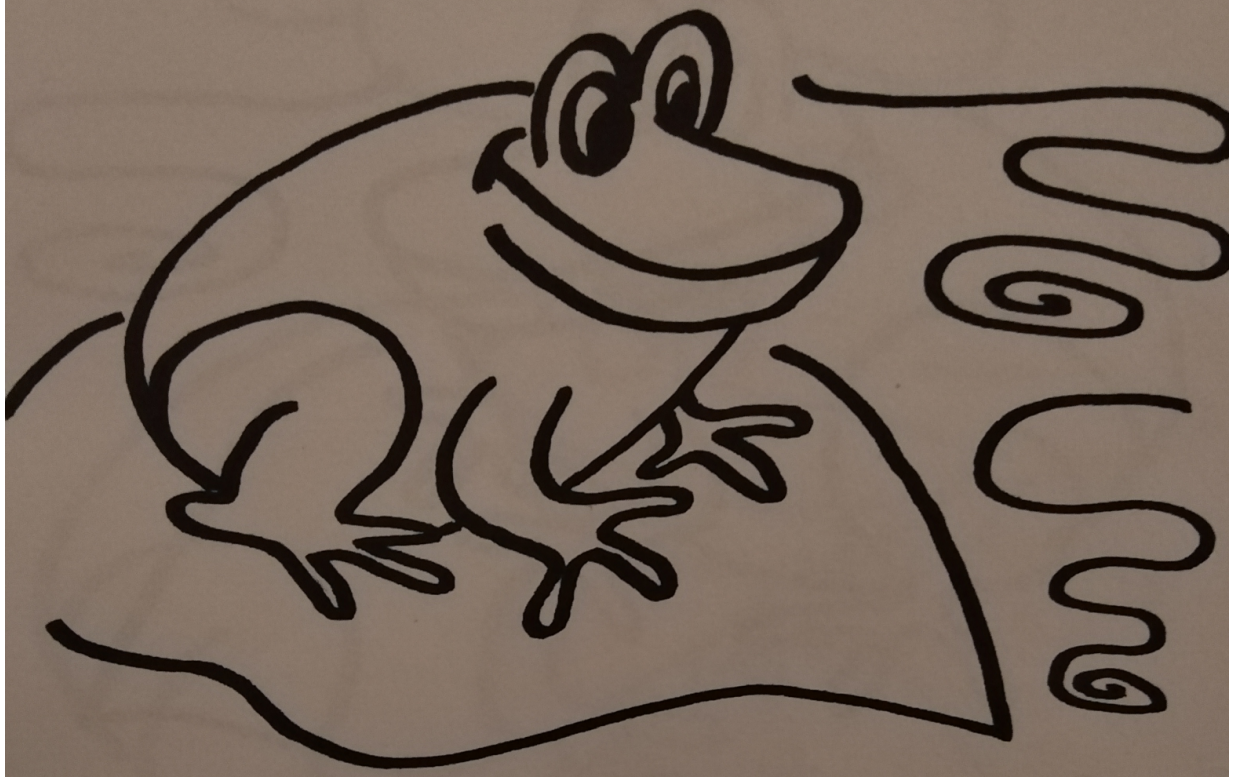
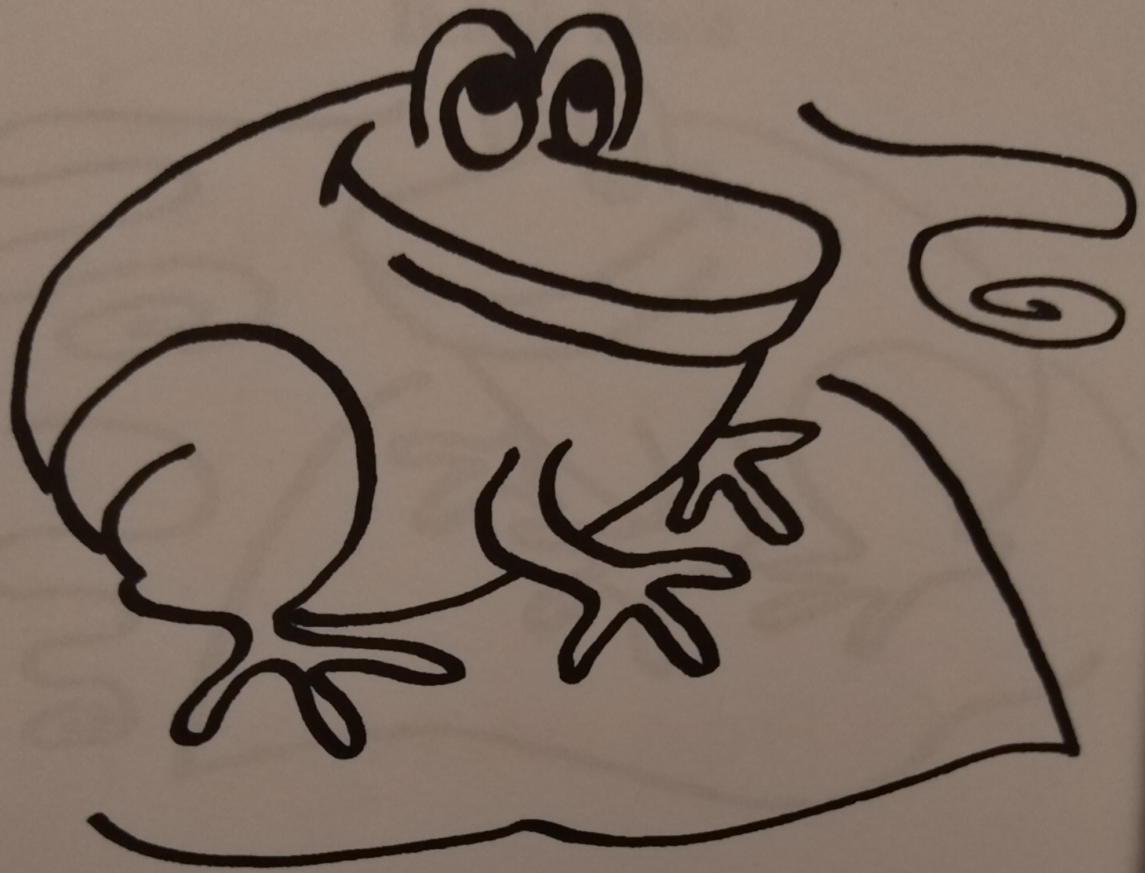
The Frog and the Fly

Long Vowel
open "y"



A frog sat on a dry
rock by the pond.



He looked up at the sky.
He thought he might spy his lunch fly by.

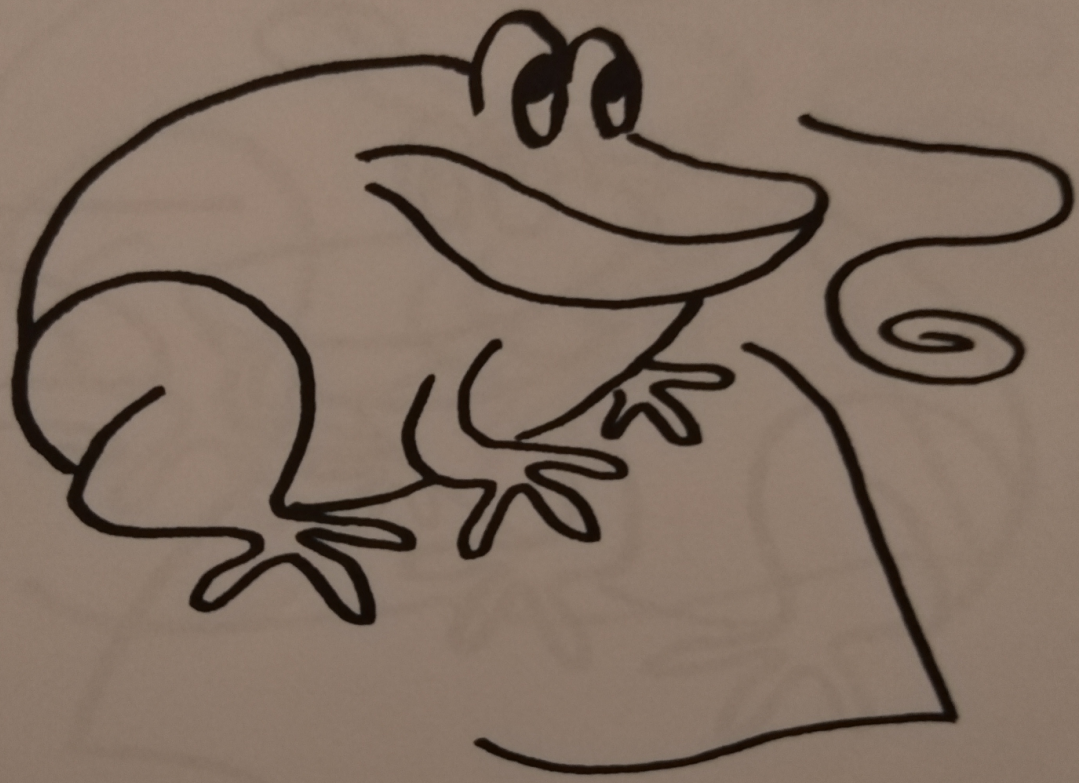
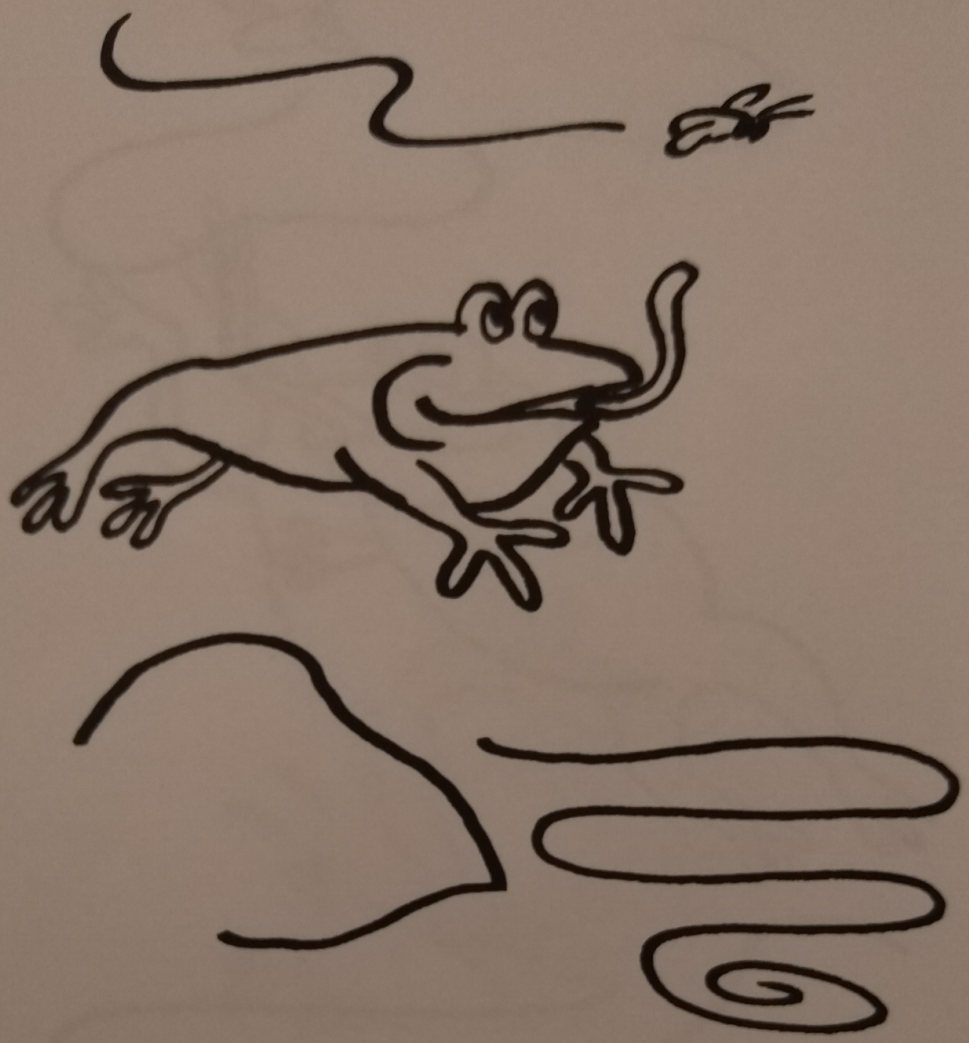
"I would love to try to catch a fly," he sighed.



Just then, a shy little fly went by. The frog saw the fly.



The frog thought he would try to catch the fly. He jumped up from his dry rock at the fly.

But the shy little fly was too sly!

"Why try?" said the shy little fly. "You will not catch me!"

"I thought I could catch him!" said the frog. "I could just cry!"
