Assignment 2.1
Overview of Linking and Embedding Clauses

1. Do the following sentences contain just one clause, linked clauses, embedded clauses, or both?

e.g The chamber might have been built for a special reason, or it might have been a gap in the pyramid's architecture.*

        A.   one clause
        B.   contains linked clauses
        C.   contains embedded clauses
        D.   contains both

                    B

a) Today, I went to see my grand uncle who lives in a nursing home.

        A.   one clause
        B.   contains linked clauses
        C.   contains embedded clauses
        D.   contains both

        _____

b) In the past, women were not allowed to attend this college even if they were fully qualified.

        A.   one clause
        B.   contains linked clauses
        C.   contains embedded clauses
        D.   contains both

        _____

c) This factory building looks old from the outside, but the inside has just been renovated.

        A.   one clause
        B.   contains linked clauses
        C.   contains embedded clauses
        D.   contains both

        _____

d) In an ordinary year, Monarch butterflies would be flying to Mexico for the winter.

        A.   one clause
        B.   contains linked clauses
        C.   contains embedded clauses
        D.   contains both

        _____

e)   The rhyme scheme is ABAAB, and there are four beats per line.

   A.   one clause
   B.   contains linked clauses
   C.   contains embedded clauses
   D.   contains both

   _____

f)   The strict meter makes it clear that the author is very concerned with form and regularity.

   A.   one clause
   B.   contains linked clauses
   C.   contains embedded clauses
   D.   contains both

   _____

g)   These skull-shaped sweets are traditionally made for a holiday known as "Day of the Dead", on which people reflect on the lives of the departed.

   A.   one clause
   B.   contains linked clauses
   C.   contains embedded clauses
   D.   contains both

   _____

h)   Sharks have two nostrils below their snout that are used for smelling, but they don't join up to the back of the throat like our nose does, so they can't sneeze like we do.

   A.   one clause
   B.   contains linked clauses
   C.   contains embedded clauses
   D.   contains both

   _____

i)   When Suleiman was young, he was fascinated by Alexander the Great, whose empire stretched from the Middle East to India.

   A.   one clause
   B.   contains linked clauses
   C.   contains embedded clauses
   D.   contains both

   _____

j)   Unfortunately, the trick-or-treating teenagers go to houses very late, and they have no respect when families are not responsive

   A.   one clause
   B.   contains linked clauses
   C.   contains embedded clauses
   D.   contains both

   _____

2

Assignment 2.1
Overview of Linking and Embedding Clauses

2. Mark the three sentences below that are incorrect because the linked or embedded clauses are not complete.

e.g. [Snow monkeys are famous] because ^ taking baths in hot springs.	X
a) This troop of Japanese macaques lives in the north of Japan, near Nagano, where the winter temperatures are very low.
b) At first, the monkeys in hot springs were a curiosity, but they eventually a health hazard.
c) The monkeys have been a tourist attraction for many years, and it looked like they were trying to stay warm.
d) When the monkeys were bathing, stress levels down.
e) Dr. Takeshita said that are usually on the periphery of the troop at this time of year.
f) She said that she jumped into the hot springs many times after her field research.	