

by Jenifer Juris

Secrets of Terrific Type

Lesson 04-12: Readability Challenge

Are you ready for the next challenge? It's time to try your hand at creating your own pieces of word art!

We just spent some time creating word art where readability matters and then, where it doesn't matter. Now it's time for you to make some more on your own.

The challenge is simple. As always, there are no restrictions. Use what you've learned in the lesson and the homework to inspire you. The only requirement is that you make both pieces where readability is important and where readability isn't important.

Remember to take your time and really let the concepts we've learned sink in!

Here are a few ideas to help you get started:

Readability Matters

1. Create some more paper pieces to coordinate with a scrapbook page or card.
2. Create a background paper where the text is easily read.
3. Make your own journal card where the text is easily read.

Readability Doesn't Matter

1. Create some decorative type to use on a scrapbook page or card.
2. Create a piece of decorative type using a fancy font and a list of family member's names. Then use it on a project with a family photo.
3. Take the lyrics from your favorite song and run them through Google Translate into a foreign language. Then copy and paste it with a script font to create a piece of decorative type.
4. Type the opening lines of your favorite book in a fancy script and use that to create a piece of decorative type.