

Learn To Give Up Control to Get Control

The truth is that it's bigger than you, and you can't be in all places all the time. Too many things need to be accomplished for just one person. Today's team leaders, supervisors and managers must learn to give up control to get control. Today's team leaders, supervisors and managers must learn to delegate some of their responsibilities to others to utilize their time better. If you fail to delegate, you are robbing their opportunity to grow. You must resist the urge to micro-manage. Become a master at empowering others by learning when and who to delegate to. This course will teach you how.

Duration: Self-paced. Live coaching session after completing the exercises, questions and answers and final review.

Who should complete this course: Ideal for anyone transitioning into a management or leadership position. A must for new or current managers, team leaders and supervisors. Those looking to be promoted will also benefit from participating in this course.

You will learn how to:

- Understand behaviour and how it impacts performance
- Let others do what they do well
- Identify your 'ideal' team role
- Identify what can and can't be delegated.

After completing this course, you'll be able to:

- Choose who to delegate to.
- Increase productivity
- Set your team up for success.
- Better deal with difficult people and challenging situations

Added Value:

- DISC Behavioural Assessment
- 24/7 ongoing support
- Live one-on-one coaching session after you have completed the course
- 30/60-Day follow-up coaching sessions to ensure you benefit from participating.