Your own website or blog	Self Publish (1)	Self Publish (2)
Typically, you will publish your book as a PDF and either give it away for free or sell it via a shopping cart.	You put your manuscript onto a self-publishing platform, like Lulu / Smashbooks	You put your manuscript onto Amazon Kindle Direct Publishing (print on demand and digital) platform, and they manage and enable your books to be distributed
Printer / publisher	Hybrid Publisher (supported self-publishing)	Agent to publisher
You give your manuscript to a printer / publisher, and they will take your manuscript, convert it ready for print, and handle your warehousing and distribution. They will additionally format your manuscript for print and digital and then upload to online platforms such as Amazon.	You place your manuscript with imprints such as Balboa Press (Hay House) or Author Solutions (Penguin). They take your manuscript and, depending on your package; they will provide a range of services and publish you.	This route depends on your agent. They will want a book proposal, or possibly the completed book, and will then find the best publisher for you. Terms will depend on negotiations
