

🐼 Snowglobe Tumbler Supply List 🐼

Hello! Below is a list of the supplies I use to make my snowglobe tumblers – with a vegetable glycerin and water liquid mixture. I've included links to the items I purchase and use but you are more than welcome to shop around and choose alternatives.

This list contains Amazon affiliate links. Using the links does not result in an additional cost to you, but I may earn a small commission on your purchase through the link. Everything I've linked is something I regularly use to make my snowglobe tumblers. I would not recommend anything that I did not love or trust. However, please keep in mind that everyone has their own preferences and experiences with a product.*

- Double Wall Acrylic Tumblers (I use a mix of the ones below)
 - Maars Acrylic Tumblers (I recommend only the 24 oz size in this brand)
 - Krafty Cups 4 U double wall tumblers (I recommend for the 16 oz size)
 - Starbucks Acrylic Tumblers found in Starbucks stores
- Raw+Rare Vegetable Glycerin: 32 oz bottle or 1 gallon bottle
- Purified or distilled water - I use Kirkland brand drinking water from Costco
- Condiment squeeze bottles
- Glitter (preferably chunky or chunky mixes)
 - My favorite glitters are from cieloylunadesigns.com
 - I also like Recollection chunky glitter mixes from Michael's
 - I recommend looking for small businesses on IG to shop for glitter
- Hot-fix rhinestone applicator tool with the 34ss (or 7mm) concave tip
- UV lamp with clamp
- UV Resin
- Cabinet door bumpers (12.7mm width x 3.5mm height)
 - Some crafters use glue dots, hot glue sticks, or gorilla tape but these door bumpers have worked the best for me in avoiding leaks

- Rubbing alcohol
- Popsicle sticks or other type of mixing sticks
- Paper towels

The items below are not necessary but optional and helpful:

- Disposable gloves
