Understand the concept of task completion as it relates to life

College: What's the Point?

Why should I go to college? What is the point? If I had one dollar for the number of times I have answered this question, I would certainly not be writing this book. I would be lying on the beach dictating these words, and someone else would be doing all the work - typing it up for me because I would be rich! Nonetheless, my answer is very simple, but there are multiple answers! Come on now, you didn't think I was going to give you the short answer, did you?

College will allow you to receive an education which will set you apart from others and ultimately lead you down a path of success if you take full advantage of its resources while you are there. Answer In The Comments Section Using Complete Sentences

Be Curious

1. This lesson is crucial because without being curious Marlo would miss out on an opportunity of a life time. Explain his opportunity and how he obtained it?
2. The Elevator Speech
 - a. An elevator speech is a short speech 30 seconds or less that quickly describes who you are, and where you are going in life.
 - b. Example: "Again, my name is Marlo Prioleau and I am a Junior Marketing Major. I have done two past internships in Columbia and Orangeburg and I specialize in sales, marketing and public speaking. My goal is to secure full time employment with a fortune 500 company after graduation and I am looking for an internship"!
 - c. Craft your elevator speech in the comments section. Imagine you are talking to a potential employer, and they are asking you to explain who you are! Include things that you do, such as sports, clubs, church activities and more!
