- Inability or unwillingness to apply the methodology.
 - Forty-four percent of survey respondents blame failure on lack of familiarity with Agile methods. About 35% say that there are not enough personnel with the necessary experience while 33% cite the unwillingness of the team to follow Agile practices. About 80% agree that training enhances the adoption of Scrum.
- Lack of management support.
 - Thirty-eight percent blame failures on lack of management support; 22% cite management's concerns about a loss of control. Support from senior management outweighs other success factors by at least fivefold when organizations successfully adopt Scrum.
- Agile principles at odds with the company's operating model.
 - More than 40% blame company philosophy or say the culture is at odds with core Agile values; 71% see tension between Scrum teams and the rest of the organization.
