School trouble – Exercise

Fill in the gaps in this conversation.

A: One of my pupils has started ... acting up

B: How exactly is he or she misbehaving?

A: She's in class.

B: What do you think has this

A: I'm not sure. I think her parents are

B: That might explain it. However, I must that divorce is not always the cause of disruptive behaviour.

A: I agree. Many things can this kind of behaviour. She's very well, and had been great in class until recently.

B: Could she have a bad crowd at school?

A: Yes, that seems like a more plausible explanation.

B: So, how are you going to this?

A: I'm not sure. I'd better what's causing her behaviour first.
