

Backstage Community Handwriting Analysis Class. November 2024. AI Summary

Summary

Bart Baggett discussed the scientific and practical applications of handwriting analysis, emphasizing its potential to change lives. He shared insights from a court case where he testified on handwriting analysis, highlighting the significance of repetitive traits like ink dots and slants. Bart introduced the concept of trauma affecting handwriting, noting that certain slants and loops can indicate emotional or physical trauma. He also mentioned the 501 courses, which delves into advanced handwriting analysis, and shared personal anecdotes to illustrate the relevance of handwriting to one's emotional and psychological state. The discussion included detailed analysis of specific handwriting samples, exploring traits like resentment, trust issues, and sexual preferences. Heather Wagenhals shared her experience with her unique handwriting, which she developed to express creativity. However, her mother criticized her for it, leading to a change in her style. Bart Baggett related this to a friend's similarly expressive handwriting. Ana Gomez and others discussed specific handwriting techniques, noting that Heather's left-handedness might have influenced her loops. The conversation shifted to nostalgia, with mentions of cassette tapes and childhood memories. Bart Baggett suggested bringing handwriting samples to future sessions for deeper analysis. The meeting concluded with plans for upcoming coaching calls and appreciation for the participants' engagement.
