ELAINE CHEAH	Hi, sorry I just entered. Is there a Q & A session at the end?
Evanna	last time i join interact clubs going around various school... i collected the most past year questions until my teacher also asked from me to give her all my sets of past year questions from other schools... wakakak. so the guy that went round the country protesting can collect various uni exam papers to help his studies
ELAINE CHEAH	Thank you for the webinar :) My questions are - i. Do you see any possibility that student unions can be established independent of the university in Malaysia? ii. Seeing the recent event in UM, it seems having an independent student union is still quite far-fetched. In your opinion, what are the possible ways to move forward (for student unions to be independent)?
Xue Er	this is heard from my friend who is currently studying in a public uni, she said that students there are not allowed to wear jeans, shorts in campus, even when times outside lectures, they can only wear formal attire. If they breach the rule, they will be imposed a fine for it. Do you think they have the right to dress freely?
Xiao Tian	Hi, just to share (abt Xue Er's question) in UM we can actually wear what we want, as long as it's decent and not revealing (as in like extremely short shorts) I have seniors who wear short pants to class, but at a length of around the knee area. In fact, UM's attire regulation allows us to wear outfits above knee length at a certain requirement.
ELAINE CHEAH	Thank you, your answer is helpful. Just one more follow up question - has there been any MPs that stand for abolishing AUKU?
Xiao Tian	In fact, many courses in our uni are quite lenient about dress code as long as you're not taking up professional courses (medicine, law, etc). I for one, do wear jeans to class haha I'm not aware about other uni, however, UKM is pretty strict with their dress code
Evanna	xue er. u ask your friend to wear freely. if kena then u ask James to fight in court and see how ... wakakak
ELAINE CHEAH	Hi Wei !
ELAINE CHEAH	I like them too! Thank you
Xue Er	thank you!
