

The graph below shows the number of enquiries received by the Tourist Information Office in one city over a six-month period in 2011.

Summarize the information by selecting and reporting the main features and make comparisons where relevant.

You should write at least 150 words.

This line chart depicts the number of information questions asked by tourists in one city from January to June in 2011. It is clear from the graph that questions in person and by telephone were increasing during this period while by letter or email were decreasing.

According to what is shown, enquiries by letter or email sustained between 700 to 800 from January to March. Then, it sharply declined to half percent and remained steady to June. However, enquiries by telephone and in person were nearly similar in February. After that, in person questions rocketed to its peak in June as it reached 1800 questions. Questions by telephone fluctuated at the beginning of this period. After it remained constant from March to April, it significantly climbed to 1600 in June.

To sum up, we could say that the number of information questions from January to March were almost the same, then both unwritten enquiries soared in June.
