There is no doubt that the number of people who travel because of low cost of international travel has increased tremendously in recent years. In this essay, I am going to discuss the merits and demerits of the climbing trend of tourism for nations.

In terms of the positive side, one of the most significant benefits of the this rising trend is that it may increase the countries' economy. The main reason given to support this claim is that tourists may spent a lot of money when they visit a foreign country, which may assist in improve the economy of this nation. Moreover, it perhaps give some people a chance to travel, such as poor individuals. This is because before many years ago, rich people only could travel to another country. Thus, decreasing the cost of international travel helps a lot of people to achieve their dreams by visiting other nations. Conversely, if they did not do so, the poor folks would not be able to travel.

However, some people strongly believe there are some disadvantages of this increasing trend as well. Firstly, the most substantial drawback is that it may destroy the nations' culture. The reason for this is that some people want to complete their traditional habits when they travel. For instance, a person who drinks alcohol, he may do not want to stop drinking it in Islam countries. Thus, he may impact on them negatively. Secondly, this may also damage the environment. This is because some tourists may ruin forests or public parks, which is plays a crucial role in producing oxygen. Hence, if tourist misbehaved in other countries, they will influence this country in the negative way.

In conclusion, although there are some positive aspects of this growing, there are numbers of drawbacks that should be handled properly.
