

Practical Principles for Knowing Your Purpose

- I Know in Whom I Believe
- I Follow God's Plans, Original Intent & Purpose
- Forgiveness is not a Feeling, It's a Choice
- When I Came to Myself

The word "purpose" is commonly associated with a goal or expectation that one has in mind. If something has a purpose, it has an anticipated forecast or specific result that is generally acknowledged by its community.

To know your purpose, you must first understand who you are! Your identity and purpose are a reflection of the one with whom you choose to identify with. When you look in the mirror, who do you see? Whose voice do you listen to? Who will you choose to believe?

When God created mankind, He did so with a goal and expected result in mind! After God fashioned each part of the human body, He breathed life by depositing His Spirit into the empty vessel with the expectation of a seeing a replica of Himself in the earth realm! Therefore, God created humanity to be an expanded demonstration of His glory, power, authority, character, and nature!
