

Survivor Stories: Korey's Advice - Second Opinions

Yeah. Like you hear you have cancer and then you go talk to-- they just assign you one. Right. I don't know her; is she the best? Does she-- where does she rank? You know, they just give you one. So you just go talk to her and okay. This is the person that's going to save your life. So you just don't have any choice. Right? It's like-- it's kind of a lot on the line, right? So if you sit back and let them dictate, you know, what you're going to do and you know, you don't want to go against them per se. Initially like you gotta take what they say look into it. Everybody trusts the doctors. Right. So it's just blind trust and I don't think that's a good thing at all. So I think the more people you can talk to the better.
