Get ready for your listening exam

To help you prepare for the Listening Test in your French GCSE, follow these 10 top tips. They are grouped into 3 categories:

- A. Preparation
- B. Revising for the listening test
- C. During the listening test

There is also an ‘On the day’ checklist to help you not to forget the important tips for the day of your exam.

A. Preparation

1. Use past exam papers

Look back at any past examination papers or sample papers and make a list of key words that appear regularly as well as vocabulary you do not know. Examination boards often have their ‘favourite’ words they like to test. Keep a list of these words in a separate book or folder. In the days just before the listening test, look through and learn these lists. These items of vocabulary are very likely to appear again.

At foundation and higher tier, it is important to use the word lists in the exam specification and learn as many as you can.

2. Get used to hearing French people speaking

You will always be asked to listen to real French speakers in listening examinations, so try not to base your practice only on listening to your teacher or other native English speakers who speak French. Your course book will help you to listen to appropriate voices at appropriate pace and degree of difficulty, but it might also be useful to find other commercially produced material to listen to, or simply to watch French films or listen to French radio. Try to listen to the recordings that go with past examination or sample papers, too.

B. Revising for the listening test

3. Learn ‘families’ of words with related meanings

Learn as many ‘linked words’ as you can manage. Some examples of the sorts of things often tested in French listening examinations include:

- a. piscine/natation/nager/lac
- b. cheval/équitation
- c. ski/sports d'hiver/neige/piste
- d. barbant/ennuyeux/pas intéressant
- e. cinéma/films
- f. heureux/content
- g. triste/malheureux/pas content

Make your own lists and keep them together so that you can revise them quickly and easily.

4. Learn your negatives

Listen very carefully for negatives. If you miss a negative, you will think a sentence means the exact opposite.

Learn the most commonly tested:

- ne ... pas (not)
- ne ... jamais (never)
- ne ... personne (nobody)
- ne ... rien (nothing)
- ne ... plus (no longer)
- ne ... ni ... ni (neither ... nor)

There are other words which express negatives indirectly, such as sauf (except).

Look at the following example:

A question in the exam paper asks “When is the market open?”

The answer to that question is contained in the sentence “Le marché est ouvert tous les jours sauf le mardi.”

If you don't know the word "sauf" or don't listen carefully to all the words, you might think the answer was either "every day" (tous les jours) or "Tuesday" (mardi). However, if you catch the word "sauf" you will be able to give the correct answer of "every day except Tuesday".

5. Similar spelling, different pronunciation

Cognates (words which are spelt the same in French and in English) are not tested very often in listening, except at the easiest level. However it is worth noting down words such as "théâtre" which means theatre but is pronounced so differently that you might have difficulty understanding it. You might find it helpful to note down roughly how the word is pronounced, too. E.g. tay-ah-tr.

6. Similar sound, different meaning

Pay special attention to 'false friends' – words which sound like English words but actually have a completely different meaning. For example, if you hear, "j'ai les cheveux raides", you might think the speaker has red hair, as "raides" sounds like the English word "red". In fact, it means, "straight", so you'd have lost a mark. Make lists of as many words like this as you can and listen out for them in the exam.

C. During the listening test

7. Use your preparation time well

Make good and effective use of your preparation time immediately before the recording begins by reading through the question papers and thinking of the French for any pictures or icons there. For example, if there is a picture of a tree think of as many French words as possible associated with that picture e.g. arbre/bois/forêt and listen out for them during the recording.

In addition, it is a good idea to check at the start of the test what type of answers you are going to have to give for each question, so you don't waste time when you're listening, wondering exactly what you have to do. For example, decide whether you have to fill a gap with a word/letter or select an answer from a selection of pictures, etc.

8. Listen all the way through

Be prepared for answers to come anywhere on the recording, so listen immediately and do not switch off, even if you think that you have heard the answer you are listening for. Sometimes additional or contradictory information may follow, which could be vital in getting the correct answer.

For example, if you are listening for a specific place that the speaker has visited and hear, “je suis allé à la piscine”, you might believe that you have found the correct answer and stop listening, only to miss the vital addition, “mais c’était fermé, alors je suis allé au cinéma.”

9. Watch out for twists and turns

Some questions appear straightforward, but you might hear ‘extra’ information on the recording which could mislead you.

In listening for the speaker’s opinion about something you might hear other opinions too. Make sure you listen carefully to work out who is saying or thinks what.

For example, if you are asked what the speaker thinks about skiing and hear “Mon frère aime le ski, mais je déteste ça.” don’t just write down the first thing you hear. The speaker hates skiing, it’s his brother who likes it.

10. Listen for tone of voice

Listen to the way things are said on the recording as this can often help with questions about opinions. If the speaker sounds negative or enthusiastic this can help you assess his or her opinion, even if you are unsure of the exact vocabulary they use

On the day

In the tension of the exam it’s all too easy to forget some of the things you’ve practised so hard.

So learn this simple list and say it to yourself at the start of your exam to remind you what to listen out for and how to act.

1. Word families
2. Negatives
3. Cognates and false friends (sounds like ...)
4. Question types
5. Listen to everything
6. Twists and turns
7. Tone of voice

Get ready for your reading exam

To help you prepare for the Reading Test in your French GCSE, follow these top tips. They are grouped into 3 categories:

- D. Preparation
- E. Revising for the reading test
- F. During the reading test

There is also an ‘On the day’ checklist to help you not to forget the important tips for the day of your exam.

A. Preparation

1. Use past exam papers

Look back at any past examination papers or sample papers and make a list of key words that appear regularly as well as vocabulary you do not know. Examination boards often have their ‘favourite’ words they like to test. Keep a list of these words in a separate book or folder. In the days just before the listening test, look through and learn these lists. These items of vocabulary are very likely to appear again.

At foundation and higher tier, it is important to use the word lists in the exam specification and learn as many as you can.

2. Become familiar with question types

The more familiar you can become with question types the less there will be for you to panic about when you open your exam paper!

Here’s a good example of how knowledge of a certain type of question can help you answer more questions correctly.

In some multiple choice questions you may be asked to indicate whether a piece of information is true, false or not mentioned in the text. It is unlikely that there will be more than two ‘not mentioned’ statements. The reason for this is that the examiner mainly wants to find out what you understand about the text. There wouldn’t be much point in giving you lots of questions that had nothing at all to do with the text!

In such cases, statements which are not mentioned are often opinions or simple statements about topics not covered in the passage. If you are unsure of a response, it is probably better not to guess at “not mentioned” as there are usually fewer of these answers than true or false.

B. Revising for the reading test

3. Spot references to the past and future

Look for ways of identifying whether an activity takes place in the past/future.

a) You can tell that an event happened in the past

- by identifying the verb form e.g. an auxiliary verb and a past participle, such as in “je suis allé” (I went)
- from the use of a time phrase such as “l’année dernière” (last year).

b) You can tell that an event happened in the future by spotting

- a straight future tense e.g. j’irai (I will go)
- the near future using aller + infinitive e.g. je vais jouer (I’m going to play)
- other phrases which indicate the future e.g. avoir l’intention de (to intend), espérer (to hope), compter (to plan), etc.
- the use of a time phrase such as “la semaine prochaine”

4. Learn commonly recurring vocabulary

Make lists of different ways of saying that things are positive and negative as opinions play a vital part in many reading texts. Apart from the obvious ways of expressing likes/dislikes, remember vocabulary items such as

- “pour” (for/in favour of), “contre” (against)
- “plaire” (to please) as in “ce qui me plaît” (which pleases me/which I like), “ce qui me déplaît” (which displeases me/ which I don’t like).

5. Know your grammar

You will need to be able to cope with questions which test grammar and awareness of structure. Gap-fill tests are popular at GCSE as they enable students to show their grammatical knowledge in a specific context. Such questions give gaps in sentences which students must fill, selecting the correct answer from a number of alternatives, usually given in a box. Here it is important to focus not solely on the whole sentence but on what comes immediately before and after the gap in the sentence, as this can give clues to the correct alternative to choose. For example, “Marc travaille à la _____ tous les vendredis,” tells you that the word in the gap is feminine. Similarly, “Il a reçu des _____ pour son anniversaire,” requires a plural word to fill the gap. Make your own list of eventualities by studying examples of this type of question.

6. Beware of ‘false friends’

Take special care with words which look like English words but have a different meaning. For example, “travailler” is to work, not to travel. Similarly, don’t be tricked by “assister à” (to attend), “pays” (country/countries), “demander” (to ask), “journée” (day), “location” (rent/hire). Make lists of these words and revise them in the days before your exam.

7. Final revision

In the days just before the listening test, look through and learn the list of words which you have made when you practised previous exam papers or exemplar GCSE papers. These items of vocabulary are very likely to appear again.

C. During the reading test

8. Read questions carefully and don’t just pick the first word you recognise.

Reading examinations often test your ability to differentiate between similar passages, written by different young people. The passages will usually be about similar topics, such as sport, so there will be some common ground within each passage. For example, one person may write, “Je ne fais jamais de natation.”, another might write, “Je suis allé à la piscine hier.” and the final one might add, “Je vais nager demain.” If the question asks, “Who has recently been swimming?” you will need to study each passage in depth and use your language skill to decide the correct answer, as all 3 mention the sport in their texts.

9. Give enough information to gain full marks

Always read the questions thoroughly and give as much information in your answers as is necessary. You will always be told how many marks are available for every question (usually shown by a number in brackets). For example, if a question asks you where the writer lives and the answer can gain you 2 marks, you would need to include 2 pieces of information. If in the passage it says “J’habite une maison à la campagne” you need to write that he/she lives in a house (1) in the countryside (1).

10. Watch out for twists and turns

Some questions appear straightforward, but passages often contain “extra” information that can mislead you.

If you are asked for the writer’s opinion about something, there will often be another person’s opinion, which will not be the correct response. “Mon père trouve le golf barbant, mais selon moi c’est génial!” is an example where the initial comment is negative but the writer’s opinion is positive.

Make sure you read carefully to work out who is saying or thinks what.

On the day

In the tension of the exam it’s all too easy to forget some of the things you’ve practised so hard.

So learn this simple list and say it to yourself the start of your exam to remind you what to watch out for and how to act.

1. Past, present and future
2. Common vocabulary
3. False friends (looks like ...)
4. Read every single word
5. All marks for each question
6. Twists and turns

Get ready for your speaking assessment

To help you prepare for your GCSE French speaking controlled assessment, follow these 10 top tips. They are grouped into 3 categories:

- G. Preparation
- H. Revising for the speaking assessment
- I. During the speaking assessment

There is also an ‘On the day’ checklist to help you not to forget the important tips for the day of your assessment.

A. Preparation

1. Know what’s expected of you

Before you begin any speaking assessment, make sure that you are aware of the grade criteria and mark schemes for the GCSE which you are doing. These are all available on the internet or you could ask your teacher for help in finding them. They will let you know what you need to do to achieve the grade which you are targeting and will help your preparations for the speaking tasks.

2. Classwork and homework

Learning a language takes time. Do not neglect your classwork and homework. You need to learn vocabulary and practise skills constantly, so working hard in class all the way through your course is vital. Learning French is different from learning history or maths, for example. To learn to speak a language you have to practise speaking it. You can’t catch up on work you’ve missed by reading through someone else’s notes.

3. Predict the unexpected

During the course of your speaking tasks, there will be an unexpected element. You can prepare for this by drawing up lists of questions you think might be asked in the context of your interview. For example, it might be that the unexpected element covers an opinion or a different time frame. It is very likely that any such question will enable you to give a personal response or opinion. Look at exemplar materials written by the examining body and find the sort of things they are expecting to include.

4. Check your notes

Just before your assessment begins, make sure that any notes you are allowed on the day are helpful, accurate and legal. Check the things you are permitted to include and make sure that you keep to the rules. There is no point in including obvious things that you know, so use the notes to prompt you for things of which you are not so sure.

B. Revising for the speaking assessment

5. Learn the French question forms

You will be asked questions in your controlled assessment. This can be daunting. How do you know what's coming? You don't for certain, but you can limit the damage in advance:

- a) Look carefully at the task and predict what the teacher might ask you. Are there any obvious 'missing' pieces of information in the task? If there are, it's quite likely they'll come up as a question.
- b) Know the common French question words and learn how to recognise a question. Your course book will teach you them and there will be a reference list for you. However, here are the most common ones:

quand	when qu'est-ce que	what qui	who où	where comment	how pourquoi	why
quel, quelle, quels, quelles	which

6. Know your past, present and future

Try to include references to the past, present and future. This isn't absolutely essential (you can get a Grade C without necessarily using all three of these tenses), but it is something which is typical of work at a high standard and will impress the examiner. Present tenses are usually easy to include, but past and future references can sometimes be more complicated. As you will have a good idea as to what you are going to say or be asked, draw up a list of useful verbs in the appropriate tenses in preparation for the tasks.

7. Tell them what you think

Remember to include regular opinions in your speaking assessments.

- These can be basic: j'aime – I like, je déteste – I hate, j'adore – I love, je n'aime pas – I don't like.

- You can also express an opinion with c'est and an adjective, for example, c'est génial (it's great) or c'est nul (it's rubbish).
- You might need an opinion in a different time frame, c'était barbant (it was boring) or ce sera intéressant (it will be interesting).
- Try to vary the way you express opinions, using je pense que/je crois que (I think that), on dit que (people say that), à mon avis/selon moi (in my opinion).

8. Tell them why

To achieve the higher GCSE grades, you will need to give reasons and justifications for your opinions. Practise using as many as possible in classwork and homework.

This will normally involve using a connective such as parce que/car (because) or puisque (since). For example, je l'aime bien parce qu'il m'aide avec mes devoirs (I like him because he helps me with my homework) or il me déplaît car il m'énerve – I don't like him because he gets on my nerves.

Try to vary what you say. The complexity and range of your vocabulary will be vital if you are hoping for a high grade.

9. Practice makes perfect

Practise your interview with a friend. This will give you greater confidence and help calm any nerves you might have. Practice in advance is also vital for you to check your timing as there will be a time limit for your task. If you speak for longer than the time allowed you won't gain any marks for the 'extra' things you say.

C. During the speaking assessment

10. The calmer the better

Stay calm and confident in the task itself. There will be few surprises, except for the unexpected questions, so don't try to change something you have prepared beforehand. If you are unsure, ask for a repetition or rephrasing of a question (make sure you know how to do this in French). Your teacher wants you to succeed too, so don't see him/her as the enemy!

On the day

In the tension of the assessment it's all too easy to forget some of the things you've practised so hard.

So learn this simple list and say it to yourself or write it down at the start of your assessment to remind you what to include and how to act.

1. Past, present and future
2. Question forms
3. Opinions
4. Reasons
5. Keep calm

Get ready for your writing assessment

To help you prepare for your GCSE French writing controlled assessment, follow these 10 top tips. They are grouped into 3 categories:

- J. Preparation
- K. Revising for the writing assessment
- L. During the writing assessment

There is also an ‘On the day’ checklist to help you not to forget the important tips for the day of your assessment.

A. Preparation

1. Know what’s expected of you

Before you begin a controlled assessment writing task, look carefully at the grade criteria for GCSE to ensure that you are going to cover the things you have to in order to obtain a certain grade at GCSE. This information is usually available on the internet in the specifications for GCSE. If you cannot find this information, ask your teacher.

2. Learn how to use a dictionary

In your preparation for controlled assessments, make sure that you use a dictionary correctly. Remember that dictionaries are most useful for looking up unknown or forgotten nouns, adjectives, adverbs, prepositions and conjunctions, but not always so good for verbs, apart from the infinitive. Check the French word you have found by looking it up in the French–English half of the dictionary to ensure that it has the right meaning.

If you don’t know how to use a dictionary properly you can end up writing gibberish. Imagine you wanted to say “I saw a cricket match” and you looked up every word individually. It’s possible you could end up with the sentence “Je scie un grillon allumette” instead of “J’ai regardé un match de cricket”, which is the correct translation.

How could that come about? The reason is that “scie” is a saw (a tool used for cutting wood), “grillon” a cricket (an insect) and “allumette” a match (used to light a cigarette).

You would have found words with those meanings but not the right ones for this sentence!

B. Revising for the writing assessment

3. Know your past, present and future

Try to include references to the past, present and future. This isn't absolutely essential (you can get a Grade C without necessarily using all three of these tenses), but it is something which is typical of work at a high standard and will impress the examiner. Present tenses are usually easy to include, but past and future references can sometimes be more complicated.

To help with past tense, it might be useful to learn some of the most commonly occurring verbs in the first person (I). For example, it is usually quite easy to include "je suis allé(e) – I went, j'ai visité – I visited, j'ai vu – I saw, je suis arrivé(e) – I arrived." Similarly, for the future time frames, it might be worth trying to learn, "je vais aller – I'm going to go, je voudrais visiter – I'd like to visit, j'aimerais être – I'd like to be."

4. Tell them what you think

Remember to include regular opinions in your pieces of written French.

- These can be basic: j'aime – I like, je déteste – I hate, j'adore – I love, Je n'aime pas – I don't like.
- You can also express an opinion with c'est and an adjective, for example, c'est génial (it's great) or c'est nul (it's rubbish).
- You might need an opinion in a different time frame, c'était barbant (it was boring) or ce sera intéressant (it will be interesting).
- Try to vary the way you express opinions, using je pense que/je crois que (I think that), on dit que (people say that), à mon avis/selon moi (in my opinion).

5. Tell them why

To achieve the higher GCSE grades, you will need to give reasons and justifications for your opinions. Practise using as many as possible in classwork and homework.

This will normally involve using a connective such as parce que/ car (because) or puisque (since). For example, je l'aime bien parce qu'il m'aide avec mes devoirs (I like him because he helps me with my homework) or il me déplaît car il m'énerve – I don't like him because he gets on my nerves.

Try to vary what you write, as the complexity and range of your vocabulary will be vital if you are hoping for a high grade.

6. Show off your skills and knowledge

Make sure that you plan to write more complex sentences. This can be done by using a variety of

- connectives (e.g. mais – but, quand – when, où – where, ou – or, pourtant/cependant – however, néanmoins – nevertheless, etc.)
- adverbs (e.g. parfois/quelquefois – sometimes, seulement – only, également – equally, etc.)
- adjectives (making sure they agree with the noun they describe)
- expressions using verbs (e.g. avant de+infinitive, après avoir/être+past participle).

7. Practise by doing

In the immediate run up to the time of your controlled writing task, try to test yourself by writing out phrases, then sentences, then paragraphs from memory. Remember that you have a set period of time in which to write the assessment tasks and that you will not have access to your preparatory work at this time.

You might be able to write a very good piece of French ‘off the cuff’ using your knowledge of language and active vocabulary, but your final product is much more likely to be better if you’ve drafted it several times and practised writing it out under timed conditions.

It is also good practice for timing of assessment tasks.

8. Know your own weaknesses

When you are in lessons, prior to beginning your own versions of tasks, try to anticipate problems that you might encounter by writing sentences and paragraphs in all 3 time frames, using more complex sentences. Discover what your most common errors are and make sure that you rectify them before they become bad habits. Work with a partner or friend so that they can check your work and you can check theirs before the serious business of preparing a specific task starts. Give each other support and advice.

C. During the writing assessment

9. Know your limits

Use what you know is correct and don’t start to over elaborate. Remember that your English vocabulary is likely to be far wider than your French, so you will not be able to write to a similar degree of complexity and accuracy in the target language. You must therefore avoid writing ideas in English, then trying to translate them word for word into French as this will almost certainly lead to problems!

10. No last-minute changes of mind

Don't try to change too much from your initial plans in the actual assessment time. However tempting it may be, particularly if there is time left, don't start to add information or opinions unless you are sure that what you are writing is both correct and relevant. Otherwise you are more likely to decrease than increase your final mark.

On the day

In the tension of the assessment it's all too easy to forget some of the things you've practised so hard.

So learn this simple list and say it to yourself or write it down at the start of your assessment to remind you what to include and how to act.

1. Past, present and future
2. Opinions
3. Reasons
4. Show off
5. Stick to what you've prepared

Tips for success in the reading and listening exams.

Learn key vocabulary for each unit.

Use your vocabulary booklets in your file, and match up vocab in this book.

<http://revisionworld.co.uk/gcse-revision/french>

Make flashcards for each unit and learn words in groups.

Make a mind map or revision poster of the key vocabulary (this website helps you to make an online revision map:

Put vocabulary to music - record yourself on your phone.

Stick Post-Its around your bedroom until you have learnt that set of words.

Get someone at school or home to give you vocab tests.

Do lots of reading comprehensions. This booklet will help, but see your teacher if you need even more materials.

Look online for listening materials:

Gabriele puts up a notice

Salut

Je suis en vacances avec mes grands-parents. Ils aiment bronzer, se baigner dans la mer et faire du tourisme. Ces activités ne m'intéressent pas. Je veux faire du canoë et aller à la pêche. Je cherche des filles d'environ dix-sept ans pour m'accompagner.

Samedi mes grands-parents vont faire une excursion au musée et à l'église. Ce que m'intéresse plus c'est aller à la plage pour faire de la plongée ou faire de la voile.

Salut! En janvier à Bordeaux il pleut souvent et il fait froid. Il ne faut pas porter des lunettes de soleil ou un chapeau, mais il faut porter un manteau et avoir un parapluie. C'est important de porter des chaussures d'hiver quand on sort, mais des sandales ne sont pas nécessaires.

Aussi il faut apporter un maillot de bain si nous allons à la piscine, mais ce n'est pas nécessaire d'apporter une serviette, parce que tu peux utiliser les serviettes chez moi.

Un match de foot

Je suis Jacques et je suis fan d'Olympique Marseille. Samedi dernier j'ai vu un match entre OM et Paris Saint Germain ici en Marseille. On s'est amusé bien. L'atmosphère était électrisante. Je préfère regarder le foot en direct.

Pendant la première moitié OM a marqué un but et pendant la deuxième moitié a marqué deux de plus, mais il y a eu un incident tout désagréable entre notre gardien de but et un joueur de PSG. Notre gardien de but a reçu une carte rouge. C'était affreux! Ce n'a pas été juste. On était un peu vexé avec l'arbitre.

Le match a été formidable mais la carte rouge était un désastre pour le gardien de mon équipe. Est-ce que tu as envie de regarder le prochain match avec moi?
