

DUTCH FOR BEGINNERS

Lesson 5: asking questions (vragen stellen)

This is the summary of lesson 5 in the course DUTCH FOR BEGINNERS. In the online video, I've only explained how to make open questions with question words, but in this summary, I will also teach you how to make yes/no questions.

After reading the theory, you can take the quiz and do the exercise. And as extra homework, I'd like you to write down questions (open and closed) to ask your Dutch friends, family, colleagues, etc.

In Dutch, as in many languages, there are two types of questions:

1. Open questions (open vragen)
2. Yes/no questions (ja/nee-vragen or gesloten vragen)

For the open questions, we use question words, such as waar, waarom, hoe, wanneer, etc. I will go into more detail later. The yes/no questions, on the other hand, always start with a verb. Look at these two examples:

1. Waar woon je? (open question with waar)
Where do you live?
2. Woon je in Den Haag? (yes/no question with the verb woon)
Do you live in Den Haag?

As you can see, question 1 is open, the person answering can say anything, and question 2 is closed because the person answering can only confirm or deny that (s)he lives in Den Haag.

Well, let's now take a closer look at both types of questions:

I. Open questions with question words (open vragen met vraagwoorden)

These are the Dutch question words:

1. Waar Waar werk je?
Where Where do you work?

| 2. Waar vandaan
Where ... from | Waar kom je vandaan?
Where are you from? | |
| 3. Hoe
How | Hoe gaat het?
How is it going? | |
| 4. Hoe oud
How old | Hoe oud ben je?
How old are you? | |
| 5. Hoe lang / hoelang
How tall / how long | Hoe lang ben je? - Hoelang blijf je in Italië?
How tall are you? – For how long are you staying in Italy? | |
| 6. Hoeveel
How many / much | Hoeveel broers en zussen heb je?
How many brothers and sisters do you have? | |
| 7. Hoe laat
“How late” | Hoe laat is het?
“How late is it?” (What’s the time) | |
| 8. Wanneer
When | Wanneer ben je jarig?
When is your birthday? | |
| 9. Waarom
Why | Waarom studeer je Nederlands?
Why are you studying Dutch? | |
| 10. Wat*
What | Wat wil je doen?
What do you want to do? | |
| 11. Welk/welke
Which | Welke docent heb jij?
Which teacher do you have? | - Welk boek lezen we?
- Which (what) book are we reading? |
| 12. Wie
Who | Wie is zij?
Who is she? | |

*About “welk/welke”

This is the only question word that you need to decline accordingly with the gender of the noun. We have neutral nouns (with het), and masculine/feminine nouns (and all plurals) which take de. When a noun is a “de-word” (or if it’s a plural), you use welke, and when it’s a “het-word”, you use welk.

For example:

1. Welke les, welke naam, welke docent → “de-words”
2. Welk boek, welk huis, welk meisje → “het-words”

BUT: when you make a plural of a “het-word” it takes de and then you use welke:

3. welke boeken, welke huizen, welke meisjes

*About “wat”

You cannot place wat in front of a noun (like you can do in English). So, wat comes in front of a verb and welk(e) in front of a noun.

II. Closed questions (gesloten vragen)

Well, most of the questions above, we can also ask them in a closed way. What we do is that we look for the verb in the sentences and start the questions with those. In Dutch main sentences, we start questions with the conjugated verb. Sometimes, in spoken language, we don't start with the verb, but we make a standard declarative sentence with a question's intonation. Well, that's not what we're going to do now, because now we are going to take a look at the basics of asking yes/no questions!

Let's start again with the open questions and formulate them in a closed way:

OPEN:

1. Waar werk je?
Where do you work?
2. Waar kom je vandaan?
Where are you from?
3. Hoe gaat het?
How is it going?
4. Hoe oud ben je?
How old are you?

CLOSED:

- Werk je bij een taalschool?
Do you work at a language school?
- Kom je uit Syrië?
Are you from Syria?
- Gaat het goed?
“Is it going well?”
- Ben je dertig jaar?
Are you thirty?
