WORKING & LIVING WITH DOERS

- You want a Doer on your team to be the project manager, planner, and to schedule things.
  - Don't bother to argue with a Doer because they love to prove their point. Expect that most things become a competition with a Doer.
  - Expect that a Doer will be in a hurry and running late. They will stay at work late and always be very busy.
  - Let a Doer have freedom to roam the outdoors and have all kinds of adventures. Even though a Doer loves to learn don't expect them to sit still to do it. They learn hands on & by doing.
  - Let them hammer, dig, chop, or hit a punching bag to get out their anger & frustration .
  - Don't take what a Doer says personally because they speak their mind and are very blunt.
  - Give a Doer room to move, support their desire to build a better world, & love their GREATNESS!

DOERS All Around You

- Remember, even if you aren't a Doer, your spouse, child, friend, parent, co worker, or neighbor might be.
- Instead of focusing on how their differences may irritate you, focus on how their hard work & innovation makes the world a better place
- Be patient, loving & kind as you come to appreciate their GREATNESS!!
