

Tables

Before HTML 5 and CSS 3 were introduced, it was a common practice among web developers to use tables for visual layouts of the pages.

Sometimes, it also helped them to cope with inconsistencies between different browsers.

Today, it is not recommended. Especially when working with a responsive design, it's a bad idea to use tables as a wire frame.