

THE PHIRI SCHOOL PROJECT

PACK FOR A PURPOSE INITIATIVE

Make a lasting impact in the lives of local children and families in an Andean community of Peru by saving just a few kilos of space in your suitcase and pack supplies much needed. Yampu has adopted a school in Peru called the Phiri School; you can bring things for these kids and we will get the supplies to them or you can go yourself to hand deliver them. This project is near to our hearts and hope it will be to you also.

The Phiri School is located just below the Veronica Glacier in the Sacred Valley, also known as the mountain with sacred tears which the locals believe fertilizes the soil. This school has four classrooms and around 65 of the sweetest children you will ever meet. Some of these children walk for an hour to get to the school, as do the teachers. The school is very proud that they have won an environmental award, which is very special in this area. Anything you can bring for the school will be appreciated more than you can imagine!
